The celebration of the Jewish new year, 5670, reckoning from the creation of the world, began last night, for both reform and orthodox Jews. The latter, however, continue their celebration two days, while the former close theirs at sunrise Thursday morning. The orthodox Jews consider the uncertainty as to the exact date of the new year as recorded by the lunar months and therefore keep the two days. The Jewish new year is one of solemnity rather than gaiety, of serious reflections, "a day of remembrances" or a "day of judgments."

SANTA FE RAILWAY WINS

of equalization held in January, 1909, in Santa Fe, the railroads operating in New Mexico were assessed on a strictly mileage basis and the Santa Fe's valuation was raised from $7,500 a mile to $10,000 a mile, the increased valuation including all buildings, rolling stock, etc.

In 1908 the amount of taxes collected from the Santa Fe Railway company in San Miguel county, including the city of Las Vegas, was $27,837. In 1909 the total amount of its taxes is $33,132, or an increase of $5,495. Under this new system of valuation the town of Las Vegas and the county of San Miguel, outside of the city of Las Vegas, gain more than $5,000, while the city and schools of Las Vegas lose in the neighborhood of $2,500.

Tends to Injure Credit

The bonded indebtedness of the city is $53,000 and that of the school district $35,000. The attorneys for the city and schools claim that as a result of being deprived of this amount of taxes the credit of the city and schools will be injured and all property in the city will have to pay a higher rate of taxation in order to make up the deficit, or curtail the efficiency of the public schools.

Judge Henry L. Waldo, who appeared for the railway company, contended that the board of equalization under the present laws of the territory is authorized to place a valuation on all railroad property, and that the county assessor has no right to make any changes.

At the meeting of the board Tuesday the railway attorneys contended that the board could not change the valuations fixed at its January meeting. The attorneys for the city claim no change was attempted, but that under section 4055, Session Laws of 1908, the assessor was compelled to assess all property within the city limits for city and school purposes, and under this law and the law of 1909 the assessor had added the $100,000 omitted by the board of equalization.

However, the appeal of the Santa Fe Railway company was sustained. The board of equalization has promised to correct the valuation next year.

According to the Las Vegas lawyers who last night returned from the capital, the recent session of the board of equalization was one of the busiest and most strenuous sessions ever held. Not less than sixty-one appeals and matters of a like nature were on the desk of the secretary when the session opened, and this list was largely augmented during the session.

Board Sustains Raise

Another subject, besides that of taxing the railroads, was in evidence. This was the taxing of grazing lands. Attorneys from every part of the territory were before the board representing large interests in connection with these subjects. Chas A. Spliss of Las Vegas, and A. B. McMillen and Col. E. W. Dobson of Albuquerque, were among the legal luminaries who sought to convince the board that its previous action in placing a valuation of fifty cents an acre upon grazing lands and land grants was inequitable and unjust.

Mr. Spliss represented the Maxwell Land Grant and the Bell Ranch, and made his argument especially telling by showing that the interests he represented, not only returned the full amount of their lands, but paid their taxes, while it was shown that the half a dozen or more land grants for which McMillen and Dobson appeared had not paid any taxes for years.

District Attorneys Ward of San Miguel county, Klock, of Bernalillo county, Studley of Colfax county and Assistant District Attorney Llewellyn of Dona Ana county, appeared in the interest of their districts and asked that the board maintain its original position. While no authoritative statement as to the finding of the board has been given out, it is understood that the board will not reverse itself and that the valuation of grazing land will remain at fifty cents an acre.

While no positive statement was made as to what would be the final outcome of the equalization board's decision in the matter of railroad taxation, it is believed that the matter will be carried into the courts in an effort to compel the corporation to pay taxes on its property in this city.
